• Bonifacio Monument, Caloocan

One of the country's most enduring landmarks, one of the nation's most impressive works of art – a fitting tribute to the man known as the father of the Philippine Revolution: Gat. ANDRES BONIFACIO

• Tandang Sora Shrine and Museum

The Tandang Sora Shrine was built in 2008 to honor the kindness of Tandang Sora (Melchora Aquino) towards her fellowmen. The Shrine was declared a National Shrine by the National Historical Commission of the Philippines on January 24, 2012. The shrine also contains a mini museum where you can find old photos of Tandang Sora, family tree, pictures of the 3rd and 4th generation, coin and bill containing the face of Melchora Aquino, a flower named after her (Hibiscus sp Tandang Sora) and a bit of her history.

• Rizal Shrine, Fort Santiago

Built in honor of the Philippine's national hero, Dr. Jose Rizal. Fort Santiago in Intramuros used to be a Spanish military fortress that imprisoned many Filipinos and Americans during the Spanish Colonial Period and World War II. The most famous prisoner was Rizal. The museum was built in 1953 and was modernized in 2013. In the Rizal Shrine, memorabilia such as Rizal's books, medical instruments, coat, hat, even business cards and many more are displayed.

NOTE: Department of Tourism-NCR will host 180 students who will be divided into two (2) batches for the scheduled educational tour on June 7-8, 2018. They will be provided with tourist buses, professional tour guides, lunch and snacks.
